

Hollow Chair

// natural

AE//

This chair is the end result of a research into traditional upholstery techniques. By examining these techniques and deconstructing them, only the essential elements evoking an upholstered chair are kept: the wooden frame and its voluminous, soft shape.

By shaping the wood frame in a particular way, a voluminous structure is created with the webbing alone. Instead of a solid element, the chair becomes almost transparent and exposes its hollow inner-self. By putting tension on the webbing, a soft, cushion-like shape is recreated without foam nor fabric.
